

Application for Admission

The Principia accepts young Christian Scientists for Upper School who are regularly attending a Christian Science Sunday School. Principia expects that at least one parent be an active student of Christian Science and a branch church member, and that both parents be willing that the applicant grow in his or her understanding of this religion and have Christian Science treatment in case of physical and non-physical needs. Principia's director of admissions will be glad to talk with parents regarding these important points.

Every application is given careful consideration in three areas: the student's academic and citizenship record, the student's and parents' desire for a Principia education, and a commitment to Christian Science as indicated by regular attendance at Sunday School and a branch church. It is expected that Principia applicants themselves be sincerely interested in progressing in the understanding and demonstration of Christian Science.
